New

Reach manufactures fire-rated cable trays in materials such as powder-coated aluminum, galvanized steel, and fiberglass with intumescent coatings, designed to prevent flame spread and maintain structural integrity.

LONGJO

Y produces fireproof channel cable trays with a high-quality steel skeleton and fireproof coatings made from siliceous, calcrete, and fiber materials, suitable for fire control rooms, fire pumps, and alarm systems. Alibaba lists a wide variety of industrial fireproof cable trays, including ladder, mesh, flat-bottom, and U-shaped designs, with options for intumescent coatings, mineral-insulated wraps, and stainless steel for enhanced fire and corrosion resistance.

Considerations When Choosing Fireproof Cable Trays

Material: Stainless steel offers superior fire and corrosion resistance, while galvanized steel and aluminum are common for general use. Fire Ratings: Look for trays tested to standards like UL 1724 and NFPA 70 to ensure compliance and safety. Coatings: Intumescent paints or fireproof coatings expand under heat to insulate cables and delay fire spread.

Installation: Proper grounding, spacing, and fire-rated fastenings are essential. Trays should integrate with firestop systems at wall and floor penetrations. Applications: Ideal for industrial, commercial, and high-safety environments, including server rooms, chemical plants, and emergency systems.

By contacting these manufacturers or browsing industrial suppliers, you can select fireproof cable trays that meet your project's safety requirements, installation conditions, and regulatory standards.
